

VIKING GODS AND PINFOLDS

Kirkby Stephen is bursting with hidden artworks to explore. In the Parish Church, the "Cathedral of the Dales" is the Loki Stone, dating back from the 9-10th century when the area was settled by Vikings. The piece depicts the mischievous Norse God Loki and is one of only two such pieces in Europe. South of Kirkby Stephen, in the Mallerstang valley, is Lady Anne's Way where you will find 'The Water Cut' by Mary Bourne, one of a series of contemporary stone sculptures situated along the River Eden (OS ref SD 786 986). At Outhgill, also in the Mallerstang Valley, is one of internationally renowned artist Andy Goldsworthy's 'Pinfold' sculptures, a hidden gem waiting to be discovered! (OS ref NY 7836 0158)

WITHNAIL AND GOLDSWORTHY

'Withnail and I', the cult 1980's film starring Richard E Grant, Paul McGann and Richard Griffiths was filmed at Shap and Bampton, becoming a site of pilgrimage for many film buffs over the years. In the film, the two 'resting' actors leave behind the squalor of London to rejuvenate at Uncle Monty's remote Shap cottage, soon realising they had 'gone on holiday by mistake.'

Andy Goldsworthy, one of the world's foremost contemporary artists, began a series of sculptures in the landscape called 'Sheepfolds' in 1996. He worked with existing stone sheep pens (folds) to create new shapes and structures, responding to the environment. The works were left in situ to weather over time, with many still standing to explore at sites across the Eden valley. For more information visit www.sheepfoldscumbria.co.uk.
